A Poem
by Charley Adams

Copy cat killers face flat
On the floor
Chalk line circles corpse's circumference -
Thighs, hips, lips, legs,
Toes show up
Tagged
Trading words for dollars
Riding beggars without wishes leaving all the dirty dishes
There's a copy cat
Who switches
Trades in his coal
For switches
And gives up poetry for sales.