

Booth

Volume 4 | Issue 5

Article 4

5-25-2012

Man of the Field

Gary Dop

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.butler.edu/booth>

Recommended Citation

Dop, Gary (2012) "Man of the Field," Booth: Vol. 4 : Iss. 5 , Article 4.
Retrieved from: <https://digitalcommons.butler.edu/booth/vol4/iss5/4>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Commons @ Butler University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Booth by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ Butler University. For more information, please contact digitalscholarship@butler.edu.

Man of the Field

Abstract

The man got kicked in the head by a mare ripped inside birthing her foal. He staggered, tried in his stupor to make the mother

Keywords

animals, farm, woman

May 25, 2012

Man of the Field

Gary Dop

The man got kicked in the head by a mare ripped inside birthing her foal. He staggered, tried in his stupor to make the mother feed. His head dripped a bright red, and her insides bled into the browns of the damp dirt and hay. Beside the unlicked colt, the man's hands twitched as he passed out,

and the little horse stood over the mess having nursed the last of his mother.

The man woke after a three-week coma, grunted at his wife, Don't touch me, swore for the first time in 22 years, shoved his teenage daughter when she raised her voice, and put his fist through the drywall while listening to the morning news. Long ago when alone in the barn as a foal first stood, its legs arguing toward a stiff compromise, he'd wipe tears

with his dirty sleeve and whisper prayers for the beasts of the field. Yesterday, the man filled a Winchester shell with a heavy load,

and in the pasture, he found the foal and brought the barrel to its brow. He couldn't tug the trigger till he turned the gun around.

The man's body sprawled both sides of the thin buzz of electric fence. Beside a patch of purple weeds and dry manure, the foal, determined and lean, was the first to consider the body and walk away.

Gary Dop—poet, scriptwriter, essayist, and actor—lives with his wife and three daughters in Minneapolis, where he teaches creative writing at North Central University. He received a Special Mention in the 2011 Pushcart Prize Anthology, his essays have aired on public radio's All Things Considered, and his poems have appeared in Prairie Schooner, Poetry Northwest, Agni, New Letters, Rattle, and North American Review, among others.

← older

about

archives

news

shop

submit

© 2012 Booth, A Journal

follow us

Facebook | Twitter

elsewhere

Booth | Butler MFA