SPECIALTY DEFINITIONS

FOR JET AGE COMPARTMENTALIZED SOCIETY, OR
PICKING NEU ROSES ALONG THE PSYCHO PATH

LOUIS B. DELFINO
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

There exists in America an awesome, albeit subtle, linguistic poverty which is the logical by-product of our society’s obsession for expressing itself through the advanced medium of the S.S.S. (i.e., Systematically Sacculated Statement). While scientists are secure behind their Geneva Nomenclature, while politicians are comfortably ensconced in Congressional incongruities, while hippies and housewives huddle in the happy hibernation of their respective jargons - while all this is going on there is, simultaneously, untold suffering by an incalculable number of citizens who are grammatically deprived because of their occupational anonymity. Who in a society preoccupied with ABM, IBM and NBC, has time to give a second thought to, say, the guy who has spent his life building highways for seagulls? An obscure profession, to be sure, but nevertheless a vital one. And how sad it is when we recognize the inevitable loneliness of such a dedicated man, who, thanks to public indifference and poorly legislated education, will probably never encounter more than a handful of people who are able to converse with him about turnpikes.

The following terms and their definitions, collected during a series of field trips into unlikely territories, will, hopefully, serve as a keystone in a linguistic archway which has yet to be constructed.
