

HOT-PAD A New Puzzle-Game

JEREMIAH FARRELL
Indianapolis, Indiana

The Puzzle: The twelve tokens are to be placed on the playing board so that each triangle contains, on its nodes, a transposal of HOT-PAD. On the back cover is a large copy of the playing grid. Another way of looking at the puzzle is to note that the tokens on any two nodes adjoined by a line have no letter in common.

The Game: Two persons alternately place a token of their choice on the grid subject only to the rule that adjoining tokens have no letter in common. Last to be able to place a token wins.
