

i'm the oak tree, rounded
waiting for wind
to reshape me, searching between my leaves you finger
every edge
is lit, softly frantic
all openings flutter in your breath—you move through
i'm motionless again

Mari Kozlowski