DRAWN INWARD AND OTHER POEMS: PART 1

MIKE MAGUIRE
Herndon, Virginia

In Umbrage
At one mention, lying ravens
peck soft hearts.
See kind images
in a memento.
Go dig at her scar.
Let no test end.
Anger
slays her, elapses.

I Numb Rage
Atonement I, only in gräven
specks of the arts, seek.
In dim ages,
I name men to God,
I gather scarlet notes.
Ten dangers lay.
She relapses.

Scar City
The iron echo reaches the mage's ear.
Chest of industrial shards.
Admissions in juries.

Scarcity
Their one chore aches them.
Age searches to find us.
Trials.
Hard, sad missions.
Injuries.

A Wake
Shells in gravel.
Over each,
formed rain.
Here,
motion, sand,
ash and snow.
Cares sweep asunder men.
Other shells in here age.
Relationships,
measure harm on you,
reverse cures in atrophy.

Awake
She'll sing, rave, love,
reach for me,
