THE MARATHON IN PALINDROMES

JEFF GRANT
Hastings, New Zealand

With the encouragement and support of my wife, Pat, I recently walked a marathon (42.195 km) for the first time. This experience inspired the following palindromes, purportedly based on quotes collected progressively from a motley crew of international participants during another marathon.

I’m running! I sign in. --Nurmi

A marathon is a canine Zen in a casino. --H. Tarama

Look, Dad, no Honda! --D. Kool

Kilometres--Eden or one desert? --E. Molik

Ten o’clock. Emit no mists. I’m on time! --K. Colconet

Miles sap steel, sleets pass. --Elim

Got to get ya water from a dam or fret away. --T.E. Gottog

Local baguets at noon taste ‘ug.’ --A. Blacol

Too much sex at noon taxes. --H. Cumoot

No such sin if I finish. --Cuson

One p.m. It’s too far (egg at six?). I stagger a foot. --Stimpeno

Walk no more--zero! --Monk law

Red and damp, march, cramp up, march, cramp (mad!) --D. Nader

Yes, made it! Legs gel, tie. --Damsey
