NAME DROPPINGS

ANIL

In the November 1994 Kickshaws Peter Newby introduced a style of punning on well-known names of the form “Was Franchot Tone deaf? Was Vincent Price conscious?”, calling them logomotives. Here’s my three cents worth (would Lotte Lenya threepenny)?

Did Yassir Arafat promise?
Is Karen Black balled?
Is David Bowie or girl?
Was John Brown nosy?
Was James Dean swift?

Did Jean Genet say “Pa”? [French]
Was Klein on the bottle?
Did Möbius strip?
Did John Newcomb with his serves?
Is Michael a Palin drone?
Was Ezra Pound foolish?
Was Anthony Quinn essential?
Would Rin Tin Tin pan alley cats?
Is Donald Sutherland Canada?
Was Joanne Woodward drawn and quartered?
Was George Washington Carver a Mount Rushmore sculptor?

Now a reversal of style, spelling out the phonetic pun instead of the name, which you must deduce.
