Cruel Unending Drama Mike Keith

The poem is based on the first 85 digits of both π and e . The digits of π are encoded in the initial letter of successive words, by taking the letter value (A=1, B=2, etc.) modulo 10, or, equivalently, the last digit of the letter value. The digits of e are encoded by the final letter of successive words, using the same encoding scheme. The title is a separate three-digit mnemonic for both numbers.

A Fairy Tale in Names Once upon a time, in a land far away, there was a nattily-dressed merry old King and Queen. All is not well—the Princess still single—no suitors—such a shame! But hold on! Look there, round the bend, gingerly riding on a horse, I can see there's a Prince, just in time. Will he propose? Bet he does! She'll accept. I love when there is a happy ending.
