

HOW TO INCREASE YOUR VOCABULARY

ANIL

Perth, Australia

The easiest way to increase your vocabulary is to MAKE UP WORDS! Like the amusing "interocitor" from an old s-f movie. Here is a new way to make up words: combine prefixes and suffixes with no substantive element in between, forcing them to take on substantive roles themselves. Here are some new words of that style. The big bonus for logologists is that these may now be treated as legit words since they have appeared in print as bold entries in a linguistics journal!

amatic doesn't work, automatically out of order apoistry the art of being elsewhere when needed autofer that that can lift itself by its bootstraps (a type of perpetual motion machine)

by-in-law three degrees of separation contrable practiced at antiness deer one who undoes (But a buck deer is one who does.)

demimore 1. half-added 2. nearly an actor diatrophic feeding on or eating into one another (a type of marriage) epiitis 1. burning headache 2. fear of heights 3. fear of vertigo hyperosity extremely full of fullness ipseology the study of sameness (Not again!)

micromillikilomegament a very broadly balanced oneness, or productive of same neotion the act of newing (a prerequisite to renewing) paratropic 1. treasonous, drawn alloward

2. drawn earthward when leaping from a parachute

polycide mass murder

reing 1. (vb) copying 2. (n.) pattern retroitious in a backward state (Oh, a di?)

selfance resembling itself, autokin supraallo almost different transol the other guy's drink triish resembling threeness, eg 2.9 of underics 1. depth psychology 2. abysmal science unlikenessless same as same as