10-14-2011

To my parents before the divorce:

Brit Blalock

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.butler.edu/booth

Recommended Citation
Blalock, Brit (2011) "To my parents before the divorce;" Booth: Vol. 3 : Iss. 10 , Article 2.
Available at: http://digitalcommons.butler.edu/booth/vol3/iss10/2
To my parents before the divorce:

Abstract
I am thinking of the way
planets move, the banana-bend of their orbits in blackness

Keywords
poetry, nine, pluto, planets
To my parents before the divorce:

by Brit Blalock

I am thinking of the way
planets move, the banana-bend
of their orbits in blackness

and the precise spin that keeps everything in order. My Very Educated Mother

Just Served Us Nine Pizzas.
That's how we learned the hopscotch from innermost to outermost orb. Except now scientists have given Pluto the boot, demoted its dimpled roundness to the title of biggest rock in some belt of other rocks.

My Very Educated Mother Just

Served Us Nein. Nothing.
They used the word reclassification as if Pluto was just moving to a new neighborhood or changing departments at work, when really they had revised the definition of planet. Truth is, they took the galaxy I knew and shook it until the handle broke off.

Truth is,
Pluto must feel like shit.

Brit Blalock recently completed her MFA in poetry at New York University, but she is originally from Alabama. Brit’s work has appeared in or is forthcoming from Blood Orange Review, Argos Books’ Little Anthology, and Birmingham Weekly. She is currently completing a book-length collection called Floodlight, which is set in a small, Southern beach town.