

11-16-2012

(the result is constellation)

Kristen Orser

Follow this and additional works at: <http://digitalcommons.butler.edu/booth>

Recommended Citation

Orser, Kristen (2012) "(the result is constellation)," Booth: Vol. 4 : Iss. 11 , Article 3.

Available at: <http://digitalcommons.butler.edu/booth/vol4/iss11/3>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Commons @ Butler University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Booth by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ Butler University. For more information, please contact omacisaa@butler.edu.

(the result is constellation)

Abstract

A universal rejection out of the tube,
a sudden explosion:

Keywords

night sky, stars, organization, piercing

BOOTH

A JOURNAL

← older

newer →

November 16, 2012

(the result is constellation)

Kristen Orser

A universal rejection out of the tube,
a sudden explosion:

An invitation

to stick flowers between my ribs,

and embroider a wingtip. The country shifts, promptly obtains a new sense of place. Do we fall behind head and accelerate the question or discover a corner to put our bodies, all questions.

The bones in our bodies and how they get out of order.

Kristen Orser is the author of Winter, Another Wall (blossombones); Folded Into Your Midwestern Thunderstorm

(Greying Ghost Press); Wilted Things (Scantly Clad Press); Squint (Dancing Girl Press); and E AT I, illustrated by James Thomas Stevens (Wyrld Tree Press). She is looking at the Pacific, but missing the way the Atlantic used to look back at her. In the West, she teaches at University of California Santa Cruz.

← older

newer →

about

archives

news

shop

submit

© 2012 Booth, A Journal

follow us

Facebook | Twitter

elsewhere

Booth | Butler MFA

