AUTHOR, AUTHOR! – Part 1

STEVE KAHAN

There can be no better venue for paying homage to celebrated writers than a journal devoted to wordplay. A score of such literary luminaries awaiting well-deserved recognition is concealed in the listing below. Revealing a name entails permuting the collection that results when a new letter replaces a given one in each word. To illustrate, after scrambling, the creators of Tom Sawyer and Robinson Crusoe will be exposed when “W” supplants “G” in GIANT and “O” does the same to “R” in FREED, respectively. A perfect score authorizes you to call yourself an author authority!
